

Inner City Newsletter

a world class African city

Region

F

September/October 2009
Newsletter for Inner City Stakeholders

Dining in the inner city

Dining jumps from fine to quirky in the inner city, home to the legendary Gramadoelas, where everyone who is anyone has eaten. >>

Inner City News

City takes a tough stance on crime

Partnerships between public and private role players are needed to fight crime more effectively, with "many voices echoing the same message". >>

Illegal shops are torn down

The police and Red Ants cut a swathe through Berea, confiscating goods and tearing down illegal buildings. >>

Joburg has a plan for migrants

The Johannesburg Migration Advisory Committee has been launched to look at concerns of migrants, and to help build a unified city. >>

Expert hails Rea Vaya

The South American creator of the bus-based mass transport system has congratulated Johannesburg on its "world class" Rea Vaya. >>

Miners and yellow balloons

Now dark brown in colour, the latest repainting of the Miners' Monument, again done by Todor Karabounarliev, should last for 20 years. >>

The Inner City Charter
The commitments signed by the City and its stakeholders to revitalise, regenerate and grow the Inner City of Johannesburg. >>

Latest on the Charter
Monthly updates on the Charter progress from Johannesburg's Inner City Programme Manager Santhurie Naidoo. >>

Partnerships

Olitzki Properties has been in the inner city for 20 years. Find out how this developer beat inner city decay, bringing dining, art and fashion to the CBD. >>

Art in the inner city

The inner city is filling up with public art, with Kippie Moeketsi taking a seat in Newtown, a trio of birds settling down in Pigeon Square, and the Sisulus resting in Diagonal Street. >>

Growing food in the inner city

A healthy diet is being made possible for some of Joburg's most vulnerable residents, who receive organic vegetables and herbs from the Siyakhana Food Garden. >>

Brightest silos in town are coming

Apartments are selling well in The Silos, in Newtown, with work set to begin in January next year. >>

Inner City forums

Developments in the inner city are on-going. Join our forums, find out what's happening, have your say. >>

Contact us

For information on the Inner City Charter, contact Santhurie Naidoo, Inner City Programme Manager, on 011 407 7002, or Shaun O' Shea, Inner City Stakeholder Manager, on 011 376 8588.